14. (C) NOTE: The Ambassador intervened during the discussion on paragraph 15, noting that the United States participates in and funds CERCONAR, and suggesting that the listing at the close of this provision be revised to "... in Meso-America, the Caribbean and the United States of America." His proposal was approved by consensus and included in the Declaration being revised by SICA officials on a large computer screen visible to all delegations. According to a reliable GOH contact, during the final preparation of the document by the SICA technical staff, one Claudia Herrera, a Guatemalan delegate from that country's Ministry of Government, insisted that the reference to the United States be excised; a demand with which the SICA technical staff acquiesced. Our contact said that the Government of Honduras is objecting to the SICA Secretariat, pointing out the SICA technical staff does not/not have the authority to revise language agreed to by the SICA Plenum, and asking the Secretariat to initiate formal consultations with the other SICA members to amend the final declaration to restore the language agreed to by consensus. END NOTE.

15. (U) COMMENT: The atmosphere throughout the Summit was highly positive, with all delegations expressing their enthusiasm for regional cooperation on security matters. There were no/no major substantive differences during the discussion of the text. Costa Rica raised objections to specific provisions in the original draft that could entail funding commitments, obtaining in response language recognizing that countries would comply with these objectives "in accordance with their judicial norms and possibilities." The next step in the regional security cooperation process will be the SICA Commission on Security Meeting, tentatively set for October 18-20, which is tasked with developing an Action Plan to implement the Summit's decisions. To date, however, there is no/no agreement on where it will be held, although a Honduran Foreign Ministry contact told us El Salvador will be the most likely host.

END COMMENT.
